章节摘录

版权页：插图：The seventh visit on March 10 revealed that the patient caught a cold yesterday, resulting in a cough and slightly stuffy nose. The left lower abdomen was still uncomfortable with prolonged standing, and the patient presented with improved urinary flow, normal appetite, sound sleep, and the pulse was slightly rapid and large on both sides. The previous formula was used with the deletion of non sha shen [Radix Adenophorae]. The eighth visit on March 20 revealed that the patient's urination was normal, and he occasionally experienced nocturia 3 to 4 times per night. The discomfort in the left lower abdomen disappeared. The patient also experienced a relapse of arthritis on the back of the left hand during the last 3 days with decreased finger function. He also presented with subjective fever, slight cough, a thin and white tongue coating, and rapid pulses. The fever and arthritis were treated with biomedicine, acupuncture and Chinese medicinals. The previous formula was used with modification.
