《上海简史》

内容概要

When the author first undertook to write this brief history of the International Settlement of Shanghai, he failed to realize the difficulty of the task. Messrs. George Lanning and Samuel Couling gathered a large amount of material concerning the early days, but no one continued what they began, and therefore a good deal of spade work became necessary.

Many books have been consulted, a list of which is published at the end of the volume, and the columns of the North-China Herald have proved invaluable.
