

《Deadly Dreams (鸩梦) 》

图书基本信息

书名：《Deadly Dreams (鸩梦) 》

13位ISBN编号：9780521552554

10位ISBN编号：0521552559

出版时间：1998-6-28

出版社：Cambridge University Press

作者：J. Y. Wong

页数：576

版权说明：本站所提供下载的PDF图书仅提供预览和简介以及在线试读，请支持正版图书。

更多资源请访问：www.tushu111.com

《Deadly Dreams (鸩梦) 》

内容概要

书籍目录

Cover	1
Title	7
Copyright	8
Dedication	9
Contents	11
List of Tables	13
List of Figures	17
Poem by the late Mr Qin Esheng	19
Foreword by Professor Wang Gungwu	21
Foreword by Professor C. A. Bayly	23
Preface	25
I The confusion of imperialism	33
1 An attempt to peel the onion of confusion	35
I. The confusing events	35
II. The bewildering issues	40
III. Current scholarship	44
IV. The search for information	48
V. Technology and imperial decision making	54
VI. My approach	56
VII. Economic causation versus strategic interpretation	60
VIII. Contrasts with established views	63
IX. In sum	71
II The pretext for imperialism	73
2 An international incident: 'That wretched question of the Arrow'	75
I. The history of the arrow	75
II. How the evidence of both sides was taken	77
III. An assessment of the evidence on both sides	82
IV. Why give false evidence?	88
V. The law lords: was the british flag flying?	92
VI. In sum	94
III The personalities of imperialism	99
3 Harry Parkes: 'If you would read a little international law.'	101
I. Introduction	101
II. Parkes's manipulation of bowring	102
III. Escalating demands	106
IV. Leading the royal navy on	107
V. The house of lords on parkes's conduct	112
VI. In sum	114
4 Sir John Bowring: Possessed by a monomania	116
I. Why was bowring led on by his young consul?	116
II. The arrow incident and the canton city question	119
III. The canton city question and an undeclared war	127
IV. The tables turned	129
V. The house of lords on bowring's conduct	135
VI. The canton city question in the eyes of their lordships	137
VII. In sum	140
5 Commissioner Yeh: A 'monster'?	141

- I. Introduction 141
- II. Yell's handling of the arrow incident 143
- III. The canton city question: the early phase 146
- IV. The canton city question: the diplomatic coup of 1849 150
- V. The canton city question: the trojan horse 153
- VI. A real monster? 159
- 6 Rule, Britannia and vox populi, vox Dei 160
 - I. Introduction 160
 - II. Popular xenophobia or protonationalism? 160
 - III. Patriotism or sedition? 164
 - IV. Popular xenophobia? civis romanus sum 166
 - V. Official xenophobia? rule britannia 172
 - VI. In sum 180
- IV The rhetoric of imperialism 183
- 7 Marx, Punch, and a political press: The debate among the British newspapers 185
 - I. Peace or war: the times 185
 - II. The tirade against yeh: the morning post 188
 - III. The eulogies for yeh: the daily news et al. 191
 - IV. 'About the english of it: punch 193
 - V. Marx on the arrow quarrel: the new york daily tribune 197
 - VI. A political press 199
 - VII. In sum: no watergate 205
- 8 The Arrow incident and international law: The debate in the House of Lords 206
 - I. Was an insult intended? 207
 - II. Was the arrow entitled to fly the british flag ? 209
 - III. The expiry of the arrow's regist 213
 - IV. British legal arguments and chinese perceptions of the origins of the war: an assessment 215
 - V. Justice and humanity 217
 - VI. The china trade 220
 - VII. An unavoidable subject: opium 221
 - VIII. In sum 223
- 9 Triumph of the liberal conscience: The debate in the House of Commons 225
 - I. What were the motives behind the pretext for war? 225
 - II. 'We have been insulted' 228
 - III. 'Let the punishment fit the crime' 230
 - IV. Jingoism 232
 - V. The defence of bowring 235
 - VI. Technicalities and generalities 236
 - VII. The china trade 239
 - VIII. The opium trade 241
 - IX. The penal dissolution 243
 - X. 'As if I had been in a jury-box' 244
 - XI. In sum 246
- 10 'Johnny' is on his knees: The 'Chinese Election' 248
 - I. George cruikshank wields his pen 248
 - II. Company men close ranks 250
 - III. A cat among the pigeons 255
 - TV. The wicked must be punished 258
 - V. The firebrand flares up 261

《Deadly Dreams (鸩梦)》

- VI. Mind your language 264
- VII. Long live palmerston 267
- VIII. Down with the 'chinese coalition' 270
- IX. 'Johnny' is on his knees 272
- X. The raging 'jesuit' 279
- XI. The 'peacemonger' takes refuge in huddersfield 280
- XII. A parliament of 'nobodies' 282
- XIII. Election postmortem 284
- V The mechanics of imperialism 291
- 11 Behind the scenes: The diplomacy of imperialism 293
 - I. Business as usual 293
 - II. Treaty revision 294
 - III. Seeking french allies: trade and treaty revision 298
 - IV. Seeking U.S. allies: trade and freedom of opinion 304
 - V. Seeking russian allies: trade and territorial expansion 308
 - VI. More questions 312
- 12 Behind the scenes: The politics of imperialism 315
 - I. Commercial interests 315
 - II. The liberal conscience 324
 - III. Party politics 329
 - IV. Behind parliamentary rhetoric 332
 - V. A political sacrifice 334
 - VI. Argumentum baculinum 338
- 13 In the wings: The lobbies of imperialism 342
 - I. Commercial expansion 342
 - II. Territorial expansion 344
 - III. Colonial expansion 348
 - IV. Missionary expansion 351
 - V. The anti-opium lobby: a motion withdrawn 354
 - VI. Questions unanswered 360
- VI The economics of imperialism 363
- 14 Anglo-Chinese trade: The Chinese should buy more 365
 - I. Export of british manufactures to china 365
 - II. The apparent british trade imbalance with china 367
 - III. British imports from china 369
 - IV. China's place in the united kingdom's imports globally 371
 - V. British import duty on chinese tea 375
 - VI. The importance of tea duty compared with the united kingdom's other sources of revenue 378
 - VII. Tea duty could almost sustain the royal navy 381
 - VIII. China: the major supplier of tea 385
 - IX. Imports of chinese silk 390
 - X. In sum 394
- 15 China's maritime trade: The Chinese could buy more 395
 - I. Introduction 395
 - II. Re-exports of foreign and colonial manufactures to china direct from the united kingdom 396
 - III. China also bought british Indian products 399
 - IV. Total 'british' exports to china 399
 - V. British trade surplus with china 401
 - IV. Quantifying the drain of silver from china 404

《Deadly Dreams (鸩梦) 》

- V. Bills of exchange from china 404
- VIII. Verifying the triangular trade perception 406
- IX. Evaluating 'free-trade imperialism' 410
- 16 The problem of India: The Chinese should and could buy more 416
 - I. A debt-ridden india 416
 - II. Opium revenue serviced the growing india debt 420
 - III. Opium revenue in bengal 420
 - IV. Opium revenue in bombay 424
 - V. The place of opium in india's revenues 426
 - VI. Nearly all the opium went to china 429
 - VII. Opium, tea, silk, and the united kingdom's global trade balance 436
 - VIII. The role of chinese silver bullion in the Indian economy 440
 - IX. What if opium were suppressed in china? 443
 - X. Further assessment of 'free-trade imperialism' 446
 - XI. Control of the opium market in china 447
 - XII. Justifying the annexation of sind 450
 - XIII. Free trade versus imperial interests 455
 - XIV. 'Expansion by poison' and other interpretations 460
- 17 The balance sheet: The Chinese are now buying more 464
 - I. Imports: tea 464
 - II. Imports: raw silk 466
 - III. British exports 471
 - IV. Exports: war materials 482
 - V. In sum 483
- VII The dynamics of imperialism 485
- 18 Conclusion 487
 - I. The confusion of imperialism 487
 - II. The pretext for imperialism 489
 - III. The personalities of imperialism 491
 - IV. The rhetoric of imperialism 493
 - V. The mechanics of imperialism 495
 - VI. The economics of imperialism 496
 - VII. Ascertaining the origins of the arrow war 497
 - VIII. Reassessing some entrenched interpretations 500
 - IX. The wider picture: some theories on the working of imperialism 502
 - X. The wider picture: some theories on the working of chinese foreign policy 508
 - XI. The still wider perspective: the rise and fall of great powers 512
- Chronology of major events 517
- Word list 520
- Abbreviations 524
- Bibliography 525
- Index 55

《Deadly Dreams (鸩梦) 》

版权说明

本站所提供下载的PDF图书仅提供预览和简介，请支持正版图书。

更多资源请访问:www.tushu111.com